

ROMAN CATHOLICISM AND ILLEGAL ALIENS

by Shaun Willcock – July 2006

The United States of America is being undermined. Like powerful moles burrowing underground and weakening the foundations of a house, or ants eating away inside the structures, an enemy is eating away at the very foundations and structures of American society. This enemy is opposed to everything that America has stood for since its foundation. This enemy is the Roman Catholic institution.

Ever since America began, the Vatican has desired to conquer it. This is because it believes that the entire North American continent belongs to it by right, because it was “discovered” by Roman Catholic European explorers. As far back as 1493, just a year after America was “discovered” by Columbus, the pope (who claims the whole earth for himself) granted the New World to the Spanish king, and stated: “We...do give, grant and assign to you, your heirs and successors... all the firm lands and islands found or to be found, discovered or to be discovered, towards the West and South, drawing a line from the Pole Arctic to the Pole Antarctic, that is, from the North to the South.”^[1]

As far as the popes have been concerned, therefore, the United States of America, as with the rest of the Americas, belongs to them. Through the centuries, one plan after another has been put in motion to bring about the desired goal of dominating and controlling the USA. And one of the methods used, which in more recent times has become immensely successful as a long-range strategy that is now beginning to bear fruit, is immigration. Specifically, illegal immigration. This was seen earlier this year, when over a million mostly Hispanic illegal immigrants marched and protested in cities across the United States, demanding “rights” for the millions of illegals working in America. They made it clear to Americans that they were going nowhere; they were there to stay.

For decades, illegal immigrants from Mexico, in particular, have been pouring into the United States, as well as from almost every Latin American country. And once they are in the U.S., they not only have more children than the average American citizen, but they also send for their spouses, children and parents from “back home”, thereby swelling their numbers even more.^[2] More legal and illegal immigrants arrive from Mexico than any other country. “Mexico’s population explosion is phenomenal. It had 34 million people in 1960, this skyrocketing to 72 million in 1980.... Mexico alone has the manpower to overwhelm and destroy US society and its standards of living.”^[3] It is estimated that already, approximately 10% of Mexico’s population now lives in the U.S. One in five children under the age of five in the U.S. today is Hispanic.^[4]

And the fact is that almost all immigrants from Mexico and the other Central and South American countries are Roman Catholics.

Mexico is a Roman Catholic nation. The “Church” of Rome has dominated and controlled the Mexican people for centuries. And in a deliberate and well-planned strategy, that same “Church” is controlling the massive movement of Roman Catholic Mexicans from their own disastrous country into the United States. What is the long-term goal? It is to make America Papist. It is to win America for Rome by flooding it with such huge numbers of Roman Catholics that they will sway the very balance of power in America, politically. It is to make the “Church” of Rome so powerful in America, that one day it will be the only recognized religion on United States soil.

Earlier this year, particularly on May 1, massive rallies, protests, and parades were held across the United States by illegal Mexican immigrants, screaming about their “rights” and demanding full amnesty so as to be allowed to stay in the U.S., to work, receive public welfare benefits, free healthcare, and free education. They entered illegally, and yet despite this crime they have been provided with the freedom of the American way of life, and a standard of living far beyond anything they ever knew in Mexico. And yet, they were out in the streets in their hundreds of thousands, protesting and demanding even more!

And these massive protests were accompanied, and at times led, by priests of Rome!

In Los Angeles, California, on March 25, some half a million people marched through the streets. These illegal immigrants, demanding to become American citizens, were flying Mexican flags and chanting slogans such as “Viva Mexico!” In Dallas, Texas, on April 9, half a million people marched, again waving Mexican flags with “Our Lady of Guadalupe” (an immensely popular “apparition” of the “Virgin Mary” in Mexico) emblazoned on the centres of the flags.^[5] Clearly they were intensely loyal to the country from which they had come. Why, then, were they demanding “rights” as Americans? Answer: this was all a very carefully laid plot. These non-citizens were encouraged to sneak into America from Mexico by their priests, and now that they are there in sufficient numbers, they are demanding citizenship – even though they remain loyal to Roman Catholic Mexico! They are pawns in a giant game, one which the Vatican is playing to win.

In addition to Los Angeles and Dallas, tens of thousands marched and protested in such cities as Denver, New York, Chicago, Atlanta, San Francisco, San Diego, etc., etc. As with mass protest rallies anywhere in the world, these ones were immensely disruptive to normal life for millions of people. Businesses closed down, traffic chaos ensued, emergency vehicles were hampered.

In Denver, Colorado, protesters waved Mexican flags and brandished signs saying: “Uncle Sam Stole Our Land!” and: “If you think I’m illegal because I’m a Mexican, learn the true history, because I’m in my homeland.”^[6] This showed the true nature of what was happening: the long-term Vatican objective of turning the USA into a Roman Catholic nation via Hispanic immigration, stirring up hatred over what is claimed by Mexico as belonging to her.

Protester Rachel Sanchez said during the march in Los Angeles, “I’m here in solidarity with all those people who have crossed [the border] and died and for all the people who are here and should be given the right to everything that we have on this land.” And the marchers chanted, while waving U.S. and Mexican flags: “Today we march, tomorrow we vote and if they deport us we will jump over the border fence.”^[7] And that is precisely why American politicians will in the end do nothing about illegal immigration: “Today we march, tomorrow we vote.” As protester Mosses Gomez said in Los Angeles, "The government knows now that we have a voice and our voice has to be heard. We still come through and make America what it is now. Without us, the government's nothing."^[8] Politicians know the immense power of the huge Latino voting bloc in America today. They cannot afford to antagonise them, or they will lose in an election to a politician who gives them what they want. And the Roman Catholic leaders are smiling smugly into their cassocks. Their long-range plan is beginning to pay off.

Historian Avro Manhattan described this immigration timebomb graphically back in 1986 when he wrote as follows, in his book, The Vatican Moscow Washington Alliance:

"By 1985, it had already been estimated that such immigration had reached 13 million, with another 'invisible' three to four million who had infiltrated into the American economic sub-strata without leaving any record or trace. These millions... have become 'de facto' members of the Catholic Church in America...

"Such mass immigration, potentially is turning America into a Catholic orientated nation. Its illegality is not only discounted, but increasingly 'legalized' by Catholic inspired legislation sponsored by Catholic or pro-Catholic politicians, Catholic lobbying, and of course the Catholic Church herself....

"The alarming result is not so much the accelerating Catholicization of America, but it is destroying the traditional Protestant motivated America of the past. Furthermore, unless there should be a concerted Protestant reaction, the Catholic Church will emerge as the undisputed dominant church in the U.S. Once this has been achieved, and its acceleration is daily gathering momentum, the leaderless Protestants will have become the denominational mass fodder for an increasingly belligerent Catholic Church."^[9]

Way back in 1985, Time magazine stated that the highest number of immigrants to the USA, both legal and illegal, were from Mexico. It said, "Already the growth of the U.S. Hispanic population is one of the most startling phenomena in American social history, and if anything is likely to speed up."^[10] It reported Florida Senator Lawton Chiles saying at the time that if the borders were not controlled, within ten years the U.S. would not be recognisable as the U.S. of his day.^[11] His prediction has proved true, demographically and (increasingly) culturally. Already California, Arizona, New Mexico, Texas and Florida are very different, culturally, from what they were just a couple of decades ago.

And the U.S. government is doing nothing to prevent it; in fact, powerful elements within the government itself are deeply involved in encouraging illegal, mostly Roman Catholic immigrants. As stated by Henry Cisneros, former mayor of San Antonio, Texas, and former Secretary of Housing and Urban Development under Bill Clinton: "These population dynamics will result in... the Hispanization of America. It is already happening and it is inescapable."^[12]

In the words of Clinton's former Assistant Secretary of Indian Affairs, Ada Deer, in 1993, this immigration flood "will alter everything in society from politics and education to industry, values and culture." "Ms. Deer is certainly correct in her statement and hints that these folks know exactly what they are doing. As a result of their senselessly flawed immigration policies, America is undergoing the most profound and comprehensive social changes in the nation's history. These changes are not happening by accident or inattention. They are the direct result of government policy and specific legislation and they could be reversed immediately if the government desired.”[13] But the government does not so desire. Politicians have been quick to test the political wind and make sure they are on the “right” side. Here are four examples. Former New York mayor, Rudolph Giuliani, stated that he would not help enforce American immigration laws. Democrat Senator Charles Schumer of New York said that the Democrats must “show Hispanics who their real friends are.” Sen. Edward Kennedy (a Romanist himself) said, in Spanish, “I see the future of America.” And Sen. Hillary Clinton greeted protestors with the words, “Your faces are the faces of America.”[14]

As Thomas Sowell wrote: “None of the rhetoric and sophistry that we hear about immigration deals with this plain and ugly reality: politicians are afraid of losing the Hispanic vote and businesses want cheap labor.”[15]

And behind it all, pulling strings, is the vast power of the Roman Catholic institution in America. Rome is up to its neck in assisting the millions of illegal Roman Catholics to pour into the U.S., and it always has been. Back in October 1986, the U.S. government passed the “Immigration Reform and Control Act”, by which undocumented aliens who had been in the U.S. since January 1, 1982, could apply for permission to remain. And the government permitted “churches” and community groups to process the aliens, with the Roman Catholic Church “being the main participant, receiving $15.00 for each person registered! The “churches” were also given permission to distribute religious literature while registering the people; and they were given the addresses of those they registered, to “follow up” on them.[16] All this added up to just one thing: tremendous growth for the “Church” of Rome in the USA.

The United States Conference of Catholic Bishops founded the “Justice for Immigrants” campaign, its purpose being to increase the numbers of Roman Catholics pouring into the country. Some twenty other Roman Catholic organizations teamed up with the American bishops to campaign against immigration reform in America. The Justice for Immigrants website states that the bishops’ criteria for reform of the U.S. immigration system includes “abandonment of the border ‘blockade’ enforcement strategy.”[17] In a word, to remove any obstacle to the flood of illegal immigration from Mexico into the U.S. As stated by the Roman Catholic internet news service, Zenit.org: “Representatives of the Holy See and of the Catholic Church in Mexico are opposing a U.S. bill on immigrants, considering it a violation of human rights.... the California Catholic Conference of Bishops appealed for full migratory reform, which will include the legalization earned by illegal workers with their effort.”[18]

What they are saying is this: illegal immigrants who have been working in the USA have earned the right to become American citizens! The fact that they entered the country illegally, breaking its laws, must be overlooked – they must be given full citizenship in the country they stole into! This policy is right in line with that expressed by the Roman pope, Pius XII, when he declared: “the sovereignty of the State, although it must be respected, cannot be exaggerated to the point that access to this land is, for inadequate or unjustified reasons, denied”.[19]

And behind this campaign are the vast resources of the Roman Catholic “Church”: money, political clout, influence in all kinds of areas. Justice for Immigrants knows that it must win the hearts and minds of young Americans; and to this end they have produced literature for distribution to school children. In this way, even if their parents still desire to prevent this massive alien invasion, the children will be indoctrinated into believing that it is every Mexican's "right" to be granted American citizenship – even if he came into the country illegally. And these children, in a very few years' time, will write American policy.

It was admitted by Mark D. Franken, executive director of Migration and Refugee Services for the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops, that all of America's 197 Roman Catholic dioceses were backing the campaign in some way, with over 70 of them being particularly active in the campaign. He also stated that the Roman Catholic advocacy on behalf of the illegal alien movement was highly organized.^[20]

Back in January 2003, the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops, with the Roman Catholic bishops of Mexico, issued a document entitled Strangers No Longer: Together on the Journey of Hope – A Pastoral Letter Concerning Migration. In this document, they encouraged Mexicans to come into America illegally! It states that "migration between our two nations is necessary and beneficial"; and then it encourages illegal immigration by saying: "We call upon pastors and lay leaders to ensure support for migrant and immigrant families. We urge communities to offer migrant families hospitality.... We call on the local church to help newcomers integrate..." This is nothing less than open support for illegal immigration! American Roman Catholics are called upon to support illegal immigrants, even though they have broken the law and slipped into America without permission. Every country in the world is opposed to illegal, uncontrolled immigration; no country can survive it. And yet the United States of America is being told that it must allow such an alien invasion!

Consider this statement from the document: "The reality of migration, especially when the journey entails clandestine border crossings, is often fraught with uncertainties and even dangers. As migrants leave their homes, pastoral counseling should be offered..."^[21] No mention here of the illegality of such border crossings! Instead, it is worded in such a way as to play on Americans' well-known sense of compassion.

Certainly, one should feel much compassion for the sufferings endured by Mexicans and others around the world, living as they are in brutal states. But just as a homeowner can feel compassion for the homeless, and do as much to alleviate their suffering as he can, while accepting that it is simply not possible to open his home to every single vagrant off the street, so on a large scale is it simply not possible for a country to fling open its borders and allow all and sundry in! No country can survive such a thing. But this is what the Roman Catholic institution is demanding – not because of any genuine concern for the poor Mexican people, but because they are pawns to advance her own agenda, which is to take control of the United States of America.

That the illegal immigration of millions of Hispanics to the United States is a massive boost to the U.S. Roman Catholic "Church" has been admitted by the Roman Catholic internet news service, Zenit.org.^[22] It reported that "a side effect of the large inflow of people is a sharp increase in the Catholic population." Right about the sharp increase (although that's putting it mildly), but wrong (probably deliberately) about this being a mere "side effect." This is the very reason for it.

In a study released in June by the California Catholic Conference, and entitled “Planning for the Future of the California Catholic Church: A Demographic Study,” it was stated that by 2025, Roman Catholics are expected to comprise about 36% of California’s population, which stands at 30% now. In 2005, 11.1 million of California’s 36.6 million were Roman Catholics. By 2025, it is expected that 16.7 million of California’s expected 45.9 million people will be Roman Catholics. This is an increase of 5.6 million Roman Catholics. Of these, 3.5 million will be the result of new births, and 2.1 million will be new immigrants. “Church” membership will grow by 129%. The Latino portion of the increased population of California in the period 1990-2005 was 79% of all new Californian residents. Between 2005 and 2025 it is expected to amount to 81% of new residents.

By 2025, 4.3 million new Roman Catholic baptisms would have occurred, over 3.1 million children will receive their “first communion” in the Roman Catholic institution, and the average parish will have expanded by over 1800 families.

Just how many Roman Catholics are there throughout the United States? Roman Catholic dioceses across the nation reported 53.6 million members in 1990, which grew to 65.3 million by 2005. This number could reach 82.7 million in 2025. By 2025 the percentage of Roman Catholics throughout the U.S. is expected to be 23.7%.

In 1990 there were 22 million Latino immigrants in the U.S. By 2025 this number could reach 66 million. The Census Bureau has projected that the total number of Americans will increase by 100 million between 1990 and 2025 – and 44 million of that rise will be as a result of immigration. Roman Catholic Latinos will probably increase to 40 million in 2025 (from 13 million in 1990). The total growth in the U.S. Roman Catholic population is expected to be about 29 million by 2025, of which 26 million will be due to the Hispanic population.

And now the pressure is on for the government to again capitulate and accept the de facto reality of millions of undocumented aliens in America, and grant them legal status even though they entered the country illegally. And the numbers are so huge that they could take to the streets in their millions, and aggressively demand that they be accepted as full citizens!

Read these words of the late pope, John Paul II, and see in them the true agenda of the Vatican: “They [immigrants] often bring with them a cultural and religious heritage which is rich in Christian [read “Roman Catholic”] elements. The Church... is committed to spare no effort in developing her own pastoral strategy among these immigrant people, in order to help them settle in their new land and to foster a welcoming attitude among the local population”.^[23] Put simply, Rome desires that these Mexican immigrants to the U.S. influence the U.S. spiritually towards Rome, and sway the political balance of power Romeward as well. High-ranking Romanists have made very similar comments: “They [the immigrants]... come with the values that are so needed in the United States today.... This is a special moment in the history of the Catholic Church and the history of migration,” said Roman Catholic cardinal, Theodore McCarrick, of Washington, D.C.^[24] In other words, these illegals bring with them the “values” of the Roman Catholic religion, which (the leading Papist emissaries fervently hope) will swing America towards Rome. And this was again emphasised by the Roman Catholic archbishop of San Antonio, Texas, José Gómez: “[T]he values they bring... is making North American culture return to its Christian roots.... The values of the immigrants are very basic, reflecting a profound Catholicism.”[25] Of course this man meant “Roman Catholic” when he said “Christian.” And note, too, how he tries in the same breath to give the impression that America had Papist roots.

These poor Mexican illegal immigrants are nothing less than evangelists for the Antichrist! Here is the proof, straight from the horse’s mouth: a document of the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops states the following concerning illegal immigrants from Mexico: “Prayer books and guides to social and religious services should be provided along the way and at the points of arrival. The migrants should be reminded of their role as evangelizers (emphasis added).”[26]

The following statement, from Roman Catholic priest, Paul Marx, way back in 1987, could not be clearer as to the Vatican’s objective in supporting and encouraging illegal mass immigration of Latin Americans into the United States: “America is a dying nation. I tell the Mexicans when I am down in Mexico to keep on having children, and then to take back what we took from them: California, Texas, Arizona, and then to take the rest of the country [the United States] as well.”[27] That, in a nutshell, is what this is all about! And it is happening: “Excelsior”, Mexico’s national newspaper, stated, “The American Southwest seems to be slowly returning to the jurisdiction of Mexico without firing a single shot.”[28]

In the words of Richard Alatorre, an Hispanic on the Los Angeles City Council: “They’re afraid we’re going to take over the governmental institutions and other institutions. They’re right. We will take them over.... We are here to stay.” And consider these words, spoken by Marlo Obledo, of the California Coalition of Hispanic Organizations and former California State Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare: “California is going to be a Hispanic state. Anyone who doesn’t like it should leave.”[29]

Reflect, too, on these words, spoken by Augustin Cebada of the Brown Berets: “Go back to Boston! Go back to Plymouth Rock. Pilgrims get out! We are the future. You are old and tired. Go on. We have beaten you. Leave like beaten rats. You old white people, it is your duty to die.... Through love of having children, we are going to take over.”[30]

And all of this – taking over the government institutions and others, putting the jurisdiction of the Southwest under Mexico, etc. – would be perfectly acceptable to both Rome and Mexico. Consider this: “Mexicans show every sign of being able to claim majority status within the foreseeable future in California – Los Angeles is already referred to as ‘the second largest Mexican city in the world’; in Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado, and Texas: the states created in the territory obtained from Mexico under the Treaty of Guadeloupe Hidalgo in 1848. These states compose ‘Aztlán,’ the mythical home of the Aztec Indians.

“Pressure groups already demand a ‘return’ of the entire South/Western US to Mexico or, alternatively, the creation of a separate ‘Chicano’ nation to be known as ‘Aztlán.’”[31] For example, there is a radical Hispanic organization called MEChA, which is demanding that the U.S. government give the Southwestern portion of the U.S. “back” to Mexican-Americans, to establish a new state, to be called Aztlán.[32] Some even go further, and are demanding that the entire USA be given to Mexico! Placards were displayed in their thousands during the protests, which said things like: “This Is Our Continent, Not Yours.” One group, the Mexica Movement, calls all of North America “Anahuac.” This group, like other similar ones, is full of hatred for “white” America. “What is clear is that some Hispanics see themselves as part of a separate nation with a better claim on U.S. territory than whites. The Mexica movement claims Olmec ancestry and aims to take back the continent from ‘racist thieving’ Europeans on behalf of the ‘Nican Tlaca’, indigenous people. Mexicans resist all European labels such as Latino, Chicano, Hispanic, Mestizo and American. In the March 25 rally in Los Angeles, they carried banners declaring, ‘All Europeans are Illegal Aliens’ and ‘We are indigenous – the ONLY owners of this continent.’

“Closer to the mainstream is the Aztlan Movement, which claims Aztec and Spanish ancestry and wants only the western half of the U.S. for ‘La Raza de Bronze.’ A leading Aztlan group is the Chicano Student Movement of Aztlan, known by its Spanish acronym MEChA....

“A 2002 Zogby poll of Mexicans in Mexico found that 58% believe the U.S. Southwest rightfully belongs to Mexico, having been stolen from Mexico in the 1800s. Not surprisingly, 57% believe Mexicans have the right to enter the U.S. whenever they please.”^[33]

An online introduction to the Mexica Movement, posted under the byline of its head, Olin Tezcatilpoca, says: “This is our land, and our continent, this is not property of the Europeans or their descendants. Not one inch of this continent belongs to Europeans, no matter what lies or distortions of ownership they may present.... Remember that we have only temporarily (and illegally) been deprived of the rights to our continent and our heritage. This occupation of our continent is not a permanent condition.”^[34]

And how do these “Aztlan”, “Mecha” and “La Raza” organisations propose to get the Southwest (or the entire USA) “returned” to them? They advocate violence against all whites and blacks, to drive them out of the American Southwest by means of “ethnic cleansing”! The “Plan of San Diego”, for example, advocates the total eradication of all races except the Hispanics.^[35]

The Roman Catholic institution even has a name for this movement to bring about the “Romanization” of the United States. They call it Reconquista (meaning Reconquest)!^[36] As the Mexican Consul General, Jose Pescador Osuna, said: “We are practising ‘La Reconquista’ in California.”^[37] Yes, and not only there, but throughout the Southwest in particular. The goal of the “Aztlan” movement is known as “la reconquista”: to take over the Southwestern states by any means necessary, and to impose a Communist (and Roman Catholic!) dictatorship.^[38] Think of what they are saying, by this name. They are saying that America belongs to the Vatican by rights, but that it managed to extricate itself from her hands; and now it must be “re-conquered” by the pope’s forces. As far as Rome is concerned, all of South, Central, and North America belongs by right to the pope. For centuries he has possessed South and Central America; and much of Canada is his. But the United States remains outside his complete control, and this situation (Rome believes) must be rectified by any means possible.

Thus if, in the end, this huge chunk of the U.S. is one day handed over to Mexico, or if, via mass illegal immigration into the U.S., all of the U.S. is politically, culturally, and most of all religiously transformed by being “Romanized”, either way Rome wins and America, as it exists now, is destroyed, either by being divided or by coming under Rome entirely.

They will seek to take the country by flooding it with illegal Mexicans. They will seek to take it by turning it into a Roman Catholic nation. They will seek to take it by controlling the government. And then – when the time is deemed right – they will not hesitate to persecute, even unto death. This has been the way of Roman Catholicism around the world throughout its existence; it would be a grave mistake to think that it would be any different in America if they felt it to be necessary. And at least one Latino did not even try to cover up this agenda. Professor Jose Angel Gutierrez, of the University of Texas, said: “We have an aging white America. They are not making babies. They are dying [recall priest Paul Marx’s words quoted above: “America is a dying nation.”]. The explosion is in our population... I love it.” And then he added: “We have got to eliminate the gringo, and what I mean by that is if the worst comes to the worst, we have got to kill him.”^[39] There you have it. And if they are willing to kill the “gringo” in general, how much more so the Christian “gringo”?

Professor Gutierrez tried to distance himself from that statement later. But when he was asked, “What do you mean by ‘eliminate the gringo?’” he replied: “You can eliminate an individual in various ways. You can certainly kill him, but that is not our intent at this moment.” Not at this moment – but he has not ruled it out for a later date!

These days, everyone is panicking over the Muslim invasion. As bad as that is, it is as nothing compared with what Rome has been doing for decades, and is doing so effectively at this very time.

One can fully understand and sympathize with the desperation of millions of Mexicans, who lead a shocking life in Mexico. Poor, illiterate, they view the USA as the Promised Land, a land where they can make a better life for themselves. People all over the world long to be able to emigrate to the United States, as they have done throughout its history. But there is a world of difference between honest, sincere attempts to emigrate to the USA legally, and pouring across the USA’s borders illegally, while the U.S. government itself does nothing to prevent them, and in fact provides assistance to them when they get there, without even insisting that they become true American citizens!

And the Mexican government is happy to see these millions of Mexicans go! It doesn’t want these millions of unskilled people. Illegal immigration to America is a double blessing for the Mexican government: it gets rid of its unwanted unskilled people; and they in turn send vast funds back to their relatives in Mexico! This money boosts the Mexican economy, lowers its unemployment rates, and also reduces political unrest and thus the possibility of political change. “Last year Mexico received a record $20 billion in remittances from migrant workers. That is equal to Mexico’s 2004 income from oil exports and dwarfed tourism revenue. Arriving in small monthly transfers of $100 and $200, remittances have formed a vast river of ‘miga-dollars’ that now exceeds lending by multilateral development agencies and foreign direct investment combined, according to the Inter-American Development Bank.”^[40]

The Mexican government is so happy about this situation that it even published a pamphlet with instructions on how to safely and illegally cross the border!^[41] “The plain fact is that this is a rational strategy for the Mexican elite. They can dump their poor in the United States – and become the tail that wags the geopolitical dog.^[42] And what will be the inevitable result for America? “[American] children and grandchildren will be living in the equivalent of a Third World country.”^[43]

Mexican soldiers escort drug gangs across the border. Not only that, but the “Church” encourages the Mexican government to encourage Mexicans to pour across the border. Border? For all practical purposes, there is no border any more between Mexico and the U.S. Despite the efforts of U.S. border patrols, and all kinds of attempts to prevent them, they have kept coming. By the millions. “This invasion is largely ignored and even encouraged by the federal government. The Border Patrol remains deliberately understaffed, and police officers who arrest illegals are told by the Immigration and Naturalization Service to turn the criminals (crossing the border without the proper passport or visa is a crime) loose in America.”^[44]

Encouraged to do so by the Mexican government itself, not to mention their priests, illegal Mexican immigrants have swarmed into the U.S. And now, numbering so many millions, they have begun to flex their muscles. And Americans have now had a taste of just how strong they have become.

There was nothing spontaneous about these protest rallies. They were part of Rome’s well-coordinated plan to destroy Protestantism and its influence in America. Of course, whenever there are protest rallies, marches, etc., anywhere in the west, the Communists, Socialists, and anarchists join in the fun, having their own agendas to promote thereby; and these rallies and marches were no exception. As investigative reporter John Taft put it: “This mob is led by socialists, communists, and anarchists who are full of hatred for this republic and the pale-faced Americans they call gringos. These radical Hispanics are the enemy within and are a more imminent threat to this nation than the nefarious al Qaeda. The Wikipedia encyclopedia says, ‘May Day has long been a focal point for demonstrations by various socialist, communist, and anarchist groups.’ These radicals often have allegiance to a foreign country, Mexico. The goals of their organizers are communist orientated and are to destroy our social structure, dominate, and drive the gringo from his land.”^[45] Taft is incorrect to think that (in this instance at any rate) the controlling force behind these demonstrations were Communists and Socialists, for beyond all doubt the driving force is the American Roman Catholic hierarchy; but that very hierarchy has for decades been making use of the Communist forces to achieve its goals, as both Romanism and Communism desire the downfall of the present American system. Worldwide, Romanism has been using the Communist forces to achieve its ends for a long time now.

Nevertheless, the Communists and Socialists (not to mention the Communist-inspired labor unions and liberal media) have their own agenda, their own reasons for supporting illegal immigration: “Socialists... love unlimited immigration from poor Third World countries. It enhances their power as these immigrants become a large underclass who are quickly hooked on government welfare and reciprocate by voting the socialists who dispense the welfare largess into power in each election.”^[46]

Communist, Socialist, and various far-left organizations played a major part in helping to organize and orchestrate the demonstrations, deliberately using the opportunity to cause yet further racial hatred and division in America – a tactic used to such great effect by Reds and almost-Reds all over the world, including South Africa. And using the Communist “May Day” (May 1st) was deliberate. This day is celebrated worldwide by Communists as the “workers’ holiday.”

What were some of the Communist and Socialist radical organizations involved in the “May Day” marches and protests? Those which participated in the New York City protests give us a good idea:

The (Communist) Workers World Party, and the International Socialist Organization, brought printed placards and signs to the demonstration, and handed out copies of their newspapers in Spanish and English. Socialist literature was displayed on tables. The Workers World Party distributed placards with pictures of Che Guevara. They also carried placards with the words: “Workers’ Struggles Have No Borders!” True Communist propaganda: that nation-states are irrelevant, that borders should come down.[47] But of course, this is precisely what Rome wants for the Americas as well. Allied as Rome is to international Communism, she was content to let the Communists do her dirty work for her, as they have all over the world. The priests of Rome were very visible in the crowd. One priest was photographed giving a speech, surrounded by Mexican flags and the red star signs of F.I.S.T. (Fight Imperialism Stand Together), a radical leftist organization.[48]

The Mexican flag was also hung over the statue of George Washington in Union Square, New York City. And there were other radical leftist groups involved as well, such as the A.N.S.W.E.R. Coalition; S.D.S. (Students for a Democratic Society); and the Revolutionary Communist Party of the U.S. This last one distributed Spanish copies of their newspaper.

Then, too, there were other organizations involved – not readily recognized by most Americans (and others) as serving the international Communist agenda, but most certainly doing so, as they have for many decades. For example, in Washington, D.C., on May 1, some 300 “clergy” met for a “prayer service” to support illegal immigrants. This “service” was organized by the far-left Center for Community Change. It is generously funded by the Carnegie Corporation of New York, the Ford Foundation, the William Randolph Hearst Foundation, the George Soros-funded Open Society Institute, the Rockefeller Foundation, and the Tides Foundation.[49] Some of these have been deeply involved in promoting the One World agenda of the Internationalists for a very long time.

What, then, is the agenda of the Communists in all this? It is to push the United States towards the New World Order. It is to merge the U.S. with the rest of the world, firstly by means of a regional government consisting of Mexico, the USA, and Canada, leading ultimately to a world government. This regional government consisting of Mexico, the USA, and Canada is already being spoken of as the “North American Community.” It is also being called the Security and Prosperity Partnership of North America (SPP). The concept is patterned on the European Union. Indeed, the entire world is being merged into regions: the European Union, the African Union, the North American Union, etc.

“The last weekend in March, Bush met with [Mexican President Vicente] Fox and new Canadian Prime Minister Stephen Harper in Cancun to discuss the progress of the year-old Security and Prosperity Partnership of North America (SPP).... The long-term goal, never stated openly, is the erasure of the borders between the three nations and the establishing of a supra-national entity along the lines of the European Union – a North American Union, if you will. The SPP – like its predecessors NAFTA and CAFTA – offers a direct long-term threat to the sovereignty of this nation.”[50]

Mexico’s president, Vicente Fox, made no bones about it. “Fox... told a California audience following his election in 2000 that his government would ‘use all our persuasion and all our talent to bring together the U.S., Canadian and Mexican governments so that in five or ten years, the border is totally open to the free movement of workers.’ He told a Madrid audience two years later, ‘our long-range objective is to establish with the United States, also with Canada, our other regional partner, an ensemble of connections and institutions similar to those created by the European Union.’”[51]

And to achieve this goal in the U.S., they have employed a three-stage revolution. First, unlimited illegal immigration, resulting ultimately in entire cities being taken over; and a consequent massive increase in crime, welfare demands, racial resentment, etc. But by then it is too late for the white majority to do anything about it. Second, as America attempts to quench the flow of illegals across its borders, the now-very-large illegal immigrant population, joined by legal immigrant friends, starts to flex its muscles and demand “rights”. This is what the world witnessed in May this year. And, Third: civil war! Although in all likelihood America has not reached this stage yet, it is coming. It is most definitely coming. The tactic being employed is that of “divide and conquer”: pitting white, black and other Americans against legal Hispanic Americans and their illegal Hispanic brethren.[52]

And the Vatican is perfectly content with allowing the Communists and Socialists to carry out these designs, for they fit in perfectly with her own agenda: the takeover of America.

Taft correctly added: “These radical Hispanics are an invading foreign army of legal citizens and illegal aliens. Do mass numbers of bodies reverse the law and make what’s illegal lawful?” And: “The protestors want open borders for the hordes of Spanish-speaking people that are unable to build their own prosperous nation south of the border. They are like fleas on a dog; they want a warm-bodied host for a free meal. They have no gratitude; these fleas want to kill the dog and keep the carcass.”

And when they get to America, thanks to America’s insane immigration and “affirmative action” laws these illegal invaders are given preferences in jobs, education, and government contracts! They avoid most U.S. taxes, they receive Social Security, medical and welfare benefits, all of which are paid for by U.S. taxpayers, they get free education in U.S. schools! 40% of all workers in Los Angeles County (a county with 10 million people) do not pay taxes, as they are mainly illegal immigrants. Over two-thirds of all births in LA County are to illegal Mexicans, and their births are paid for by U.S. taxpayers.[53]

What effect will this massive and continuing influx of illegal Roman Catholic immigrants have on the United States of America? What kind of social, political, and spiritual impact will it have?

Socially and politically, it will result in the increasing “Romanization” of American society.

Politicians now know that in order to come to power, they have to court the Roman Catholic electorate. And to do that, they cannot afford to be tough on illegal immigrants from Roman Catholic nations, for this would alienate the huge Roman Catholic voting bloc in America. Furthermore, politicians realize that if they support the acceptance of the millions of illegal Roman Catholics into American society, they will thereby gain millions of extra votes on election days. It is simply too good an opportunity to pass up for politicians with no moral backbone. And in America today, as in most countries, that means most of them.

In addition, this uncontrolled immigration flood is creating all kinds of social problems. One of these is an increase in crime. Illegal aliens from south of the U.S. border account for over 75% of all crime in southern California, Arizona, New Mexico, Texas, and other parts of the American Southwest. 95% of all warrants for murder in Los Angeles are for illegal immigrants. 75% of people on the “most wanted” list in Los Angeles are illegal immigrants. Half of all gang members in Los Angeles are illegal immigrants from Latin America.[54] Note the two countries mentioned first in the following quotation: “There are several... new ‘mafias,’ each with its own specialties: Colombians (cocaine); Mexicans (marijuana, auto theft, alien smuggling); Hong Kong Chinese (heroin, alien smuggling); South Koreans (prostitution)...”[55] Colombia and Mexico – both strongly Roman Catholic.

Another danger: “According to Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) figures, about 2.5 million illegal immigrants enter this country every year. Nearly 7000 every single day, 365 days a year. Somewhere between 300-500 000 remain here and the rest just flow back and forth across our borders like the tide. Imagine – somewhere around six thousand people every day just enter then leave this country at will.

“One can only dimly conceive of how much heroin, cocaine, or marijuana might be carried by 6000 people each day.... Or how many illegal weapons. Or foreign agents. Or how much biological, chemical or even nuclear materials they might convey onto our shores.... the government has massively failed to provide even the most basic of protections for its citizens – prevention of foreign invasion. For if Russia or China or any other adversary desired to invade or attack this country, they would not need ships or airplanes. They could just walk in from Mexico.”[56]

It is already happening. Al Qaeda agents enter the U.S. from Mexico, disguised as Mexicans, in their hundreds and probably their thousands. Thus the illegal flood of Roman Catholic Mexicans into America is also a grand cover for the illegal flood of other American enemies, notably Muslim terrorists and Communist agents.

Muslims in America view the Hispanic illegals as very open to conversion to Islam, which in turn would greatly assist the Islamic war on America. With this in mind, Muslims in America are greatly assisting Mexican illegals with the view to converting them to Islam. In Los Angeles and elsewhere, Muslims were urged to join the Latino protesters in the May 1st marches and protests.[57]

And spiritually, the impact of this vast tide of illegal Roman Catholic immigrants on the USA will be enormous. This is a nation that is gradually being moved away from being a “Protestant” nation to a Papist one. And this will mean, increasingly, the loss of that freedom of religion (and consequently, freedom from persecution) which Americans have enjoyed for so long. For Rome does not practise or believe in freedom of religion, and never has. Only one religion deserves to be allowed to exist on the earth, as far as Rome is concerned; and that is the Roman Catholic religion. This is why she has persecuted all who differ with her for centuries. This is why she continues to do so in places like Mexico, and other countries where she has the power. And make no mistake about it, this is what she would do in the United States of America if ever she could.

And she is working very hard to be in a position to do so, one day. And that day is no longer very far off.

For American Christians, let me say a word from my perspective as a South African. My country has experienced great social changes, firstly as a result of the dismantling of the apartheid legislation which meant that for the first time, South Africans of all races could live in the same neighborhoods, etc.; and secondly as a result of a massive flood of illegal immigrants from neighboring African countries, who perceived South Africa as the Promised Land, just as Mexicans and others from Central and South America perceive the United States. This was and is a huge threat, and South Africa has been transformed from a modern, efficient, First World country into a Third World basket case, with crime out of control, our cities turned into ghettos, the economy strained to the very limit, services disintegrating, etc., etc. In a word, we are already where you are rapidly heading!

Whether you like it or not (and you don't have to like it, for it is wrong), millions of illegal Mexicans are now living next door to you, working alongside you, etc. And as I told my own congregation years ago: one thing we must not lose sight of in all this, regardless of the fact that it means all kinds of very serious problems for the country, is that the Lord in His providence has brought the mission field right to your very doorstep! There are now millions of people living and working alongside you whom you would never have had the opportunity to reach with the Gospel, but now they are within reach! Perhaps you thought to yourself: I am not called as a missionary to Mexico, or to Colombia, or to Guatemala. Well, providentially the mission field has come to you! Use the opportunity! The powers that be are doing wrong, and breaking the very laws of your land, in allowing this shocking situation to continue; but maintain a biblical perspective in it all. When the believers in the church at Jerusalem were scattered by persecution, the Gospel reached people it never would have reached otherwise (Acts 8:1,4); when Paul and Silas were imprisoned, they had the opportunity to preach the Gospel to the jailor (Acts 16:22-40); and now that millions of illegals are pouring into your country, view it as a huge opportunity to proclaim the Gospel to these poor, benighted Roman Catholic souls, for truly, an open door is before you!

*The United States of America is changing, and changing rapidly. This massive illegal flood is changing the culture of America; it is turning American cities into Third World ghettos; it is causing crime to escalate; it is leading to increased racial polarization and conflict; it is draining away the country's financial resources; it is weakening the country; and most ominous of all – the United States of America is being Romanized. And we concur with these words of Avro Manhattan, written in the 1980s: “Unless events of extraordinary magnitude occur, and assuming that Europe has finally become a Catholic-Communist dominated continent; and further, that successive American administrations continue to belittle the internal danger of political and politico-religious subversion, then the approaching decades will surely witness one certain event – the steady decline and the eventual collapse of American civilization as we know it today.”[58]

Europe is becoming a “Catholic-Communist” continent; indeed, the plan is well advanced. And successive American administrations have continued to belittle the dangers. And in the two decades since the above was written, the world is certainly witnessing the steady decline of American civilization, leading to its eventual collapse.

Perhaps the only “event of extraordinary magnitude” that will occur to prevent it, is the second coming of the Lord Jesus Christ. July 2006
